This Week's Learning

This week's rhyme of Jack and Jill was based in the water trays and the children have enjoyed filling and emptying pails of water. The role play was based on the children's interest in Pirates and they have used the large box outside this week as a pirate ship, a shark, a slide, a mountain and a cave!

Something Special

Playing with a cardboard box can build skills that some toys can't, such creativity, imagination and resourcefulness. Cardboard boxes inspire creativity and imagination as they children build upon, transform and reinvent them.

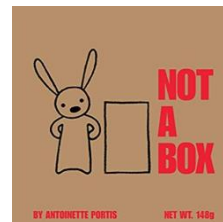

Six Learning Dimensions of a Cardboard Box

1. Spatial Awareness.
2. Comfort and Security.
3. Empowerment.
4. Control.
5. Asensory Play.
6. Imagination.

Why not look in the local library or online for the story Not a Box by Antoinette Portis or Not a Stick by the same author to share together and see what ideas your child has for their box / stick?
