This Week's Learning

We have returned back to Brambles with a 'roar'! This week we have had lots of fun activities, learning real facts from non-fiction books. We used the Smartboard to help us search for information about dinosaurs. We also had fun with rhymes with our fiction story.

We also started our next aspect of letters and sounds this week for "Body Percussion" and we will be doing activities each session for this half term. This is a great clip to help at home:

Something Special

A storytelling basket is a fun way to interact with your child's favourite story. The example below uses Goodnight Moon, a classic book from Margaret Wise Brown. The text is simple and rhythmic. When reading the book, point to the items mentioned. "And a red balloon"...there's the red balloon. To extend, ask your child to find each item. For those who are ready, see if they can re-tell the story themselves using the book and items from the basket.

Don't forget to email in photos of your child with their favourite story and their storytelling basket – we'd love to see them and encourage your child to talk about their favourite book. (Brambles@brampton.cambs.sch.uk).
